

CO-OCCURRING DISORDER

The coexistence of a psychiatric illness with a dependency on drugs or alcohol is debilitating and commonly results in missed time from work or school which can jeopardize family stability and security.

It is common for those suffering from a mental illness to “self medicate” through the use of drugs or alcohol and the specialists at BCA Permian Basin understand this complicated dynamic. Treating the two issues simultaneously increases the chance for change in this difficult to treat group.

Our goal is to stabilize both the psychiatric and dependency issues. This process will include a comprehensive assessment, participation in group and individual therapies, medication management, and education on options for long term success once the patient leaves the facility.
